

How To Protect Yourself From Credit Card Hacks

Today, credit cards hacks have become quite common which has made it extremely important for everyone to know about different ways of protecting themselves from such attacks.

Don't share your credit card details with anyone.

Avoid making any kind of payments through your credit card while purchasing anything from an unsecured website.

Thoroughly check your monthly statements before paying credit card bill.

Use strong passwords, change them frequently and activate two-factor authentication (if possible).

Make sure that your billing address, email address & phone number are always updated with the card issuer.

Immediately report to the issuer in case your credit card gets stolen or lost.

Do log out from the system or browser after making an online transaction in order to protect your account details.
